COVID-19, also known as the “Coronavirus,” is a new sickness everywhere.
People who have Coronavirus might have a fever, a cough, or trouble breathing.
You may have heard people talking about Social Distancing.

This is a new idea.

Sometimes new ideas are confusing.
Social Distancing is also called “Physical Distancing” because it means to put space or distance between people.
You can engage in Social Distancing by staying home with your family unless there is a reason to go out.
Some people might leave the house to:

- Pick up food
- Go to the store
- Go to the doctor
- Play in the yard
- Ride bikes
When we go out, we should stand far apart to keep germs from spreading.

Standing far apart is Social Distancing.
When we go out, we should stand at least \underline{6 feet} away from people that don’t live inside our house.

To help us remember, \underline{6 feet} is about the length of your bed or two Golden Retrievers!
We stand far apart because germs can spread when we cough, when we sneeze, and even when we talk!
To keep ourselves and others from getting sick, we can:

• Stand far apart
• Wash our hands
• Wear a mask
Since “social distancing” is a new skill for us to learn, watch a video to find out more!

Also, just because we need to stay home or stand far apart doesn’t mean we can’t talk to people we care about.
We are learning new ways to be together.

We can even play games together through the phone & computer!
And soon we may be able to spend time together in person too.

When we do, we will practice what we learned about Social Distancing.
Caregivers,
